Food prices up 30% in a year; 750,000 parents go short of food so that their children can eat; 1,000,000 below the poverty line!

SPEAKER FOR TROOPS OUT MOVEMENT MEETING STOPPED AT THE AIRPORT UNDER JENKINS ACT...

JOAN MAYNARD SAYS: JENKINS ACT DENIES LIBERTY

WHILE THE KU KLUS LEADER IS ALLOWED TO ADDRESS FASCIST SECT

The Financial Times quotes stockbrokers Phillips & Drew as saying: "The head of the big bosses' organisation, seems almost dazed with delight after the Prime Minister's statement. He emphasised that big business 'did not affect' the price restraint. He announced that the experts would need to push up prices at least 10% to cover the effect of price control over the last three years. And food magnate Lord Sainsbury added his piece: he does not think anyone can look forward to any early slackening of the rate of increase in the price of food. There is nothing so, in the pipeline to work through.'"

The Financial Times'Graphic house has been 90% already in the last 10 months. If Sainsbury is right, food prices are likely to rise no less than 10% over the next year.

Price controls will not work. The only reason why the TUC advocates this policy is because it is one of not relying on the efforts of the workers. That's why they are saying: "We won't be the victims!"

Bank and file bodies like the National Bank and File Movement, the Liaison Committee for the Defence of Trade Unions, The Building Workers Charter and the National Ports Shop Stewards Committee should plan meetings immediately on how to fight the freeze. If it voluntary or statutory, and should raise the demand for an immediate EUC Conference.

A centralising, unity-making strategy will be necessary to move against the freeze. To maintain living standards, our demands should include the return of threshold limits — with a zero threshold, within thresholds provided, at least, some protection against rising prices. But they were inadequate. They did not stop until prices had risen manyfold. They did not allow for tax rises and cuts in social services. Estimates of the effects of three strikes on workers' families. What we need is a campaign — a moonshot in the battle for a new deal."

"We are the workers of this country. We are not going to be pushed around by the bosses' organisations, we are going to fight for our rights!"

Now in its full glory the basic concept of the 'social contract' — the workers' right to a share of the profits, not just in the form of higher wages, but in the form of higher standards of living and better benefits. If we are not to be pushed around by the bosses' organisations, we are going to fight for our rights!

What about Ernest Heffer, Judith Hart and the other MPs of the Labour Party? What do they say? They are not saying, "We are going to fight for our rights!" They are saying, "We are going to fight for the bosses' organisations!"

NOTHING: "We are now asked to take on the wage cut, and social service cut, and more to lose in return for nothing."

NOTHING: And all Labour Party workers in the trades union movement I won't stand for that! I won't stand for that!"
PRISONS ARE FULL BUT BELLIES ARE EMPTY

The poverty of last week's Indian prime minister's speech can be put down to Gandhi's fear of losing his vote after the combined onslaught of the defeat of the Congress in the elections and the verdict against Gandhi for minor instances of corrupt electioneering.

But the general police state, endemic inflation, and unemployment are a long time coming. Before the elections, the government had already stated its intention to limit public expenditure and to raise taxes in order to control inflation. However, this decision was taken without consulting the workers and peasants, who had already been protesting for months. The government's economic policies have been met with widespread opposition, and the current economic crisis has only served to exacerbate existing problems.

In India, poverty is a constant battle. The official figures for unemployment and poverty are consistently reported as too low, and the government's policies have not done much to address the issue. The situation has worsened in recent years, with the COVID-19 pandemic and the lockdowns leading to a severe economic downturn.

BURDEN

Meanwhile, the prices of food grains have almost doubled in a year, while incomes remain static. The poorest peasants are forced to eat more meat for plant- ing or sell their tiny parcels of land for cash. These factors, along with the recent droughts, have led to a 50% decrease in the production of rice, which is a staple food in India. The government has implemented various measures to control inflation, but these have not been effective.

JOBLESS

In the face of this situation, many Indian workers have been forced to leave their homes and look for work elsewhere. The Indian economy has been hit hard by the COVID-19 pandemic, and the unemployment rate has risen dramatically. Many workers have lost their jobs and are struggling to make ends meet.

LEBANON: RIGHT WING FAIL TO SPARK A 'BLACK SEPTEMBER'

Nearly 300 people have been killed in the past few weeks' fighting between Lebanon'suchsia forces and demonstrators. The Lebanese army is a right-wing paramilitary group that has been involved in various conflicts in the region. The demonstrations are being supported by the right-wing forces, who are calling for a return to the past.

The Lebanese army has been using violent tactics to suppress the demonstrations, and the situation is deteriorating rapidly. The international community is calling for a peaceful resolution to the crisis, but the situation remains tense.

LEFTISH

The displacement of the Christians as the largest group by the Muslims in recent years has given the Muslim community a new role. Muslims, who traditionally were a small minority in Lebanon, are now the largest group in the country. This has led to a rise in tensions between the two groups.

The Syrian government has been trying to stabilize the situation, but the situation remains volatile. The international community is calling for a peaceful resolution to the crisis, but the situation remains tense.

BACKING

Haven't failed through provoc- ation to destabilize the government, the Falangists, whose militias are composed almost entirely of Maronite youth, resigned to the government forcing, it is expected that the Maronite group will continue to resist the government. The Falangists' position is likely to remain strong, as they have a large following in the country. The government, on the other hand, is likely to be more willing to compromise, as the situation continues to deteriorate.
IT ALL started with the founding conference of the BIG SIX (Rover, BMC, Rootes, Ford, Standard and Vauxhall) in 1956. This was a Communist Party controller car- workers' organisation formed to combat growing victimisation and redundancy threats in the car industry. The main resolution passed in opening session was to set up a 40-hour week without loss of pay, to be progressively shortened to prevent mass sackings due to new techniques. That is, what is often called a "sinking weekly wage". It was accepted that where automation did displace workers they should be retained and re-trained by the employer concerned, not by the state. This was a "work or full pay" approach the resolution stands as a reminder of the nationalisation of the motor industry.

The unity of the BIG SIX gave a tremendous boost to the confidence and fighting spirit of rank and file car workers as can be seen from this resolution.

By Eric Harrison, then shop steward, No.1 machine shop, Banner Lane Standard works.

The second conference of the BIG SIX took place in 1956 at Birmingham, had to be called off because of the problem of sackings. After another conference a delegation from APV works at Crawley, who had won a 40-hour week the week before, reached the second week of their strike twice went to the works to try to persuade the management to come to terms. The delegate reached the works straight from the shop floor in a train (the SLL) as conveyor, and carried on the principled struggle for seven months. The fact that this group of workers came into prominence meant that they were not isolated, but their struggle was further succeeded by the strikers at the British Thompsons, the strike Solidarity Fund nationwide, and the nationwide campaign for redundancies. The tremendous response in a whole, the publicity they got from the rank and file also together they were able to go outside and beyond the Standard's control. In conclusion, through these energies to defeat the bosses, the APV standardized the steps on the bar in the movement to isolate revolutionary.

By Eric Harrison, then shop steward, No.1 machine shop, Banner Lane Standard works.

The second conference of the BIG SIX took place in 1956 at Birmingham, had to be called off because of the problem of sackings. After another conference a delegation from APV works at Crawley, who had won a 40-hour week the week before, reached the second week of their strike twice went to the works to try to persuade the management to come to terms. The delegate reached the works straight from the shop floor in a train (the SLL) as conveyor, and carried on the principled struggle for seven months. The fact that this group of workers came into prominence meant that they were not isolated, but their struggle was further succeeded by the strikers at the British Thompsons, the strike Solidarity Fund nationwide, and the nationwide campaign for redundancies. The tremendous response in a whole, the publicity they got from the rank and file also together they were able to go outside and beyond the Standard's control. In conclusion, through these energies to defeat the bosses, the APV standardized the steps on the bar in the movement to isolate the revolutionary.

Donated

The BIG SIX met in Coventry during the summer of 1956. Norton workers called for assistance but none came from the constituents. The Trotskyists were called "social Fascists" by the Trotskyists and the CP leadership.

At the same time, the AMWU was out on strike trying to prevent 6,000 workers being fired. Richard Conough (TUC chairman) introduced Measured Day Work to the AMWU in 1957. And when at Ford's Briggs Motor Bodies the AMWU went out on strike, 170 sacked workers. But the strikes were wiped out with the notices that they were only to re-employ those after the strike. The fact that the CP was taking no action.

But at rank and file level a tremendous campaign was generated and all expected that the BIG SIX were unprepared. All car workers to smash this contract workers particularly Standard strikers visited Norton's latest strikers for the first time and insisted on doubling the size of the strike fund. In the town of Coventry, the boys' employers, the TUC went to the strike and set out to organize 700 sacked workers. But the strikes were wiped out with the notices that they were only to re-employ those after the strike. The fact that the CP was taking no action.

The meeting, having full control of the CP leadership, voted for a return. The AMWU broke up the negotiations, the 3,700 redundancies were settled and 170 sacked workers were returned. The AMWU was the number of the CP members and 170 were sacked. The CP members were blacklisted for life. The AMWU had seen how the Hungarian strike had been defeated.

Harry Finlay, the convenor of the Coventry car workers in the CP leadership, voted for a return. The AMWU broke up the negotiations, the 3,700 redundancies were settled and 170 sacked workers were returned. The AMWU had seen how the Hungarian strike had been defeated.

When we find members of the CBI and top management attending courses on "job enrichment", "motivation" and "success" and "their inner world", we can be sure that none of these investments will do anything but increase the share price and not the profit and not the workers' personal needs for employers' profits.

While the Government labors over new car plants and the sociologists ship in with surveys, standard of production is alienated by the self-sacrificing ethos of our society, and at the same time the death of schemes which they hope will overcome that alienation by increasing the life of the old scheme, are added to discipline.

One thing is sure for the thrust for making work "more satisfying" is a disinterested device for making work more "interesting". The movement has come out of rank and file workers. But it has been even witnessed how the movement is a new development in the workers' discipline.

"Flexitime, a fake freedom!"
CIA: The Great Greywash
One twentieth of the truth exposed

By Sue Lane

For nearly three decades, middle class America has watched with something close to fascination the creation, the Central Intelligence Agency, has sought to maintain its trust in the public. The US policy on the spread of nuclear weapons has long been a matter of public concern. The CIA's activities, however, have been shrouded in secrecy and intrigue. The agency's role in the spread of nuclear weapons has been a source of controversy and debate.

Wiretaps

Predictably, the 'checks and balances' in operation seemed to have been overridden, particularly in the case of the Congress. The House was given a full disclosure of the CIA's activities, but only after a long period of delay. Vice President Rockefeller, in his capacity as Chairman of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, was the only one to know what the CIA had been up to on the home front.

John Roselli (above) and San Francisco Chronicle were among those who were prevented from investigating the CIA's activities. The report was undoubtedly incomplete: it is also vague on names, details and specific incidents. Many witnesses were not called, and those that were, weren't pressed too hard. The CIA's response to these charges was astonishing.

PLOTS

Little wonder, given the US policy on the spread of nuclear weapons. The 1960s were a time of great change in the world, with the Cold War reaching its peak. The CIA played a crucial role in shaping the course of events, and its activities were shrouded in secrecy.

Agents

Predictably, the Rockefeller report smoothes over the evidence of the CIA's activities. The report is long on praise and short on criticism. It seems likely that the CIA's activities were more extensive than those that were revealed.

MURDER

It is clear that no official has been able to come to terms with the evidence of the CIA's activities. The CIA's role in the spread of nuclear weapons has been a source of controversy and debate. It is clear that the CIA's activities were more extensive than those that were revealed.
Families flee their homes as Racist terror stalks a London estate

by Jan Wilde

The four Bengali families recently moved to the GLC estates in the East End of London. A series of violent attacks against them, mostly by local youths, have been reported. The residents are deeply concerned about the safety of their children and are calling for the authorities to take action.

The Bengali community has been living in the area for several years now. The recent attacks have left them feeling vulnerable and afraid. They are also concerned about the impact of these incidents on their children's education and well-being.

The GLC estate is a relatively new area in the East End of London. The residents are mostly a mix of Bengali and English-speaking families. The attacks have caused a great deal of strain and tension within the community.

The residents are calling for the authorities to take action against the perpetrators of these attacks. They have also expressed their concern about the lack of support and resources available to them.

Despite the recent attacks, the residents remain committed to making their community safer and more inclusive. They are looking forward to working with the authorities to address these issues.

Parents fight on after McDaniel verdict

The parents of the late Michael McDaniel, who was killed two months ago, have decided to fight on after the verdict in the case. They are determined to see justice done and to ensure that similar incidents do not happen in the future.

The family of Michael McDaniel, a young black teenager, have been fighting for justice for months. They have been supported by a number of organizations and have received widespread support from the public.

The verdict in the case has been hailed as a victory for the family and for justice. However, the family has expressed the need for continued support and for the authorities to take action against the perpetrators of the attack.

The family's persistence and determination have been an inspiration to many. They have shown that it is possible to fight against injustice and to demand accountability for those who commit such acts.

Troops Out Movement

We have received two replies to our article reporting the Troops Out Movement Conference which took place in July. One is from R. B. J. P. Jones (Isle of White) and the other from W. W. B. Allen (Brighton). Both replies express the views of those who attended the conference and the need for further discussion on the topic.

We welcome these responses and encourage others to share their thoughts and opinions on the issue of troops deployment.

SOLIDARITY BULLETIN

produced for activists in the Troops Out Movement by the Solidarity Caucus. This bulletin aims to provide discussion and information on issues of interest to those already committed to ending, or at least reducing, the dependence on the armed forces. It is intended to be a forum for discussion and debate.

The Solidarity Caucus is a group of activists who are working to end the dependence on the armed forces. We believe that the army is a tool of oppression and we are committed to working towards a society that is free from the threat of violence and war.

Issue 1: A reply to the Conservative Federation of Britain on The fight for self determination in a white state.

138 Gifford St, London N1 17
FRUITLESS SEARCH FOR THE 'REAL' RANK AND FILE

The RFU has been hit by a dispute between the national team management and the Workers Revolutionary Party. The dispute is over the sacking of the RFU's chief executive, who is a member of the Workers Revolutionary Party. The Workers Revolutionary Party is a left-wing political group that has been involved in protests and strikes against the ruling government. The RFU, which is the governing body of rugby union in England, has been accused of being too close to the government and not sufficiently representing the views of the广大 public.

PORTUGUES'S 'REPUBLICA' WORKER TO SPEAK AT THE L.M.G.

On Thursday 22nd May, two of the leading figures of Portugal's Republican Movement, who have been involved in the fight against the Falange regime, will speak at the L.M.G. Their speeches will focus on the struggle for democracy and the fight against fascism in Portugal. The speakers will also discuss the role of the Workers Revolutionary Party in the struggle for democracy and the importance of maintaining the momentum of the movement.

THE WRP AND THE I.M.G.

The Workers Revolutionary Party (WRP) is a left-wing political group that has been active in Portugal for many years. The party was founded in the 1930s and has been involved in the fight against fascism and the struggle for democracy. The WRP has been involved in numerous protests and strikes and has played a key role in the struggle for democracy in Portugal.

PAPHEMS FROM WORKERS' FIGHT

Available from 98 Gifford St, London E10. Please include 5p to cover costs & packaging.

For a 'Rank and File' Movement.

Rank & File Movement: A Proletarian Workers' Fight Film. Lessons we have to learn and apply to the struggle from behind: 10p.

NUPE Gay members organise.

The National Union of Public Employees (NUPE) is a trade union that represents gay and lesbian workers. NUPE has a long history of campaigning for the rights of its members, including the right to be free from discrimination and harassment. NUPE is also a member of the Workers Revolutionary Party, which is a left-wing political group that has been involved in the struggle for democracy and the fight against fascism in Portugal.

UNDER THE PREVENTION OF TERRORISM ACT

The Prevention of Terrorism Act is a piece of legislation that was introduced in the UK in 1974. The Act was designed to combat terrorism and was used to prosecute a number of people who were suspected of being involved in terrorist activities. The Act has been widely criticized for its violation of civil liberties and its effectiveness in combating terrorism.

WHY WE MUST GET RID OF THE PREVENTION OF TERRORISM ACT

People are being unfairly persecuted under the Prevention of Terrorism Act. The Act was introduced in 1974 and has been used to prosecute a number of people who were suspected of being involved in terrorist activities. The Act has been widely criticized for its violation of civil liberties and its effectiveness in combating terrorism.

REVOLUTIONARY REGROUPMENT.

The call to revolutionarization is not a call to return to the past. It is a call to future action, a call to create a new society that is free from exploitation and oppression. The call to revolutionarization is a call to create a society in which all people are equal and in which the means of production are owned and controlled by the working class.

SUBSCRIBE TO WORKERS' FIGHT

£2.50 per month. (26 issues per year, 13 issues per half-year). Please post paid.

Published by Workers' Fight, 24 Gifford St, London E10. Printed by voluntary