The MEETING of the Prime Minister and General Secretary of the TUC

The Secretary of State for Employment and Industry visited the TUC last week to discuss the government's plans for the economy.

The government is planning to introduce a new tax on the rich

The government is planning to introduce a new tax on the rich to fund a major infrastructure project. The tax will be introduced in the next budget and is expected to raise £10 billion per year.

The government is also considering cutting benefits for the unemployed

The government is considering cutting benefits for the unemployed to save money. This is expected to save £2 billion per year.

There are fears that the cuts will hit vulnerable groups

There are fears that the cuts will hit vulnerable groups, such as the elderly and disabled. The government is expected to announce the details of the cuts in the next few weeks.

---

London: The TUC is calling for a national day of action

The TUC is calling for a national day of action on the 10th of next month to demand better pay and conditions for all workers.

The TUC is also calling for an end to austerity

The TUC is also calling for an end to austerity measures, which they say have hurt working people.

---

Strikes support jailed pickets

As three building workers are still held in Heathrow, 8 of the ‘Seven Days’ went on trial today. 150 trade unionists took to the streets in support of the workers. The demonstration was met with police intervention, and several arrests were made.

---

Irony

No less ironic and incredible is that the Tories have tried to portray the union leaders as the enemy. The Labour Party has always been known for its union ties, but now it seems that the Tories are trying to paint them as the enemy.

The irony is that the Tories have always been accused of being anti-trade union, but now they are trying to portray themselves as the champions of trade unions. This is a clear case of double standards.

---

London demonstration against the jailing of the Shrewsbury 2

A large demonstration was held in London today to protest the jailing of the Shrewsbury 2, a group of trade unionists who were sentenced to prison for their activities.

---

Jailed pickets

The pickets who were jailed for their role in the protest have been released, but the government has promised to take action against similar protests in the future.

---

The government plans to introduce a new tax on the rich

The government plans to introduce a new tax on the rich to fund a major infrastructure project. The tax will be introduced in the next budget and is expected to raise £10 billion per year.

---

The government is considering cutting benefits for the unemployed

The government is considering cutting benefits for the unemployed to save money. This is expected to save £2 billion per year.

---

There are fears that the cuts will hit vulnerable groups

There are fears that the cuts will hit vulnerable groups, such as the elderly and disabled. The government is expected to announce the details of the cuts in the next few weeks.
OIL CUTS UPTO TRADE BALANCE

The two articles by BRUCE ROBINSON

PAUL ADAMS outlines th.

Grape pickers call for boycott aid

THE STRUGGLE for union recognition of the California vineyard workers has lasted for almost 10 years. Once again the workers have turned to the attention of the British labour movement and are winning support for their campaign against California's grape pickers.

BRIEDEN CHAVES, one of the leaders of the pickers' union United Farm Workers has been touring Europe to publicise their struggle.

The grape pickers of California are almost entirely Mexican-Americans, or Mexicans who trace their roots back more than 200 years. The workers uproot vines, pick grapes, back every day in cramped and often unhealthy conditions and very poorly paid. The work is backbreaking and hazardous to health because of the poisonous pesticide spraying, with an annual death rate of 0.5% higher than the national rate of 0.4% and 100,000 children under 16 work in the fields (in Europe, every third child suffers from pesticide poisoning, and it is the same for migrant workers of all ages in Europe.)

In the early years of the UFW they only had picketing rights for the few growers they represented. In the last four years they have also had the right to strike through the National Union of Agricultural Workers, which, in collaboration with the growers, has tried to break up UFW picketing rights. Recently there was a big victory in the strike at Morgan's in Simi Valley.

The Tractor Racers warrant the right to fight in contracts with the growers. The growers have been fighting the Tractor Racers controlled labour, as Tractor Racers is an independent group of farmers that are linked in a cooperative union and are far less exploitative and corruption.

The Tractor Racers have the upper hand in the UFW to organise a genuine union to fight for the workers rights. They are a thorn in their side. Hence this UFW is a very big part of the Traktion Racers activities.

The UFW has a long way to go, and the concerted attacks on it are costing it dearly. It has fought bravely and resolutely. A consumer boycott in the UK could be very effective; but attempts to extend it internationally have so far been hampered by the lack of cooperation at official level. First as an idea. When the London Dockers blocked a cargo of California grapes, they are a start, but a good one: it must be extended to ensure that no more of these grapes are sold in this country to the profit of these grapefruit strikers.

John Cunningham

You can come and live with me - I'm dead-

A REVIEW

Marked that the method of exploitation under capitalism is the way the there is no education for blacks labour power. Labour power is bought by capitalists, and its value depends on commodity on the market. However, if the worker happens to be black and living in a poor country this may to have a licence for his job as a mason.

Siweh Bansi needs work because he has a wife and five children in Williamstown, a poor black town in South Africa. But he cannot find work because he has no licence for his job.

Siweh Bansi tries to get a licence for his job, but he is turned down by the authorities.

He tells his friend to apply for a licence, but his friend is turned down as well.

Siweh Bansi is left with no choice but to work on the road for a few extra Rand to support his family.

In the end, Siweh Bansi is forced to leave his family and go to the city to find work.

Siweh Bansi is a typical example of the poverty and discrimination faced by black workers in South Africa. His story is not unique, and many others face similar challenges in their daily lives.

Marx stated that this method of exploitation under capitalism is the way the there is no education for blacks labour power. Labour power is bought by capitalists, and its value depends on commodity on the market. However, if the worker happens to be black and living in a poor country this may to have a licence for his job as a mason.

Siweh Bansi needs work because he has a wife and five children in Williamstown, a poor black town in South Africa. But he cannot find work because he has no licence for his job.

Siweh Bansi tries to get a licence for his job, but he is turned down by the authorities.

He tells his friend to apply for a licence, but his friend is turned down as well.

Siweh Bansi is left with no choice but to work on the road for a few extra Rand to support his family.

In the end, Siweh Bansi is forced to leave his family and go to the city to find work.

Siweh Bansi is a typical example of the poverty and discrimination faced by black workers in South Africa. His story is not unique, and many others face similar challenges in their daily lives.

Marx stated that this method of exploitation under capitalism is the way the there is no education for blacks labour power. Labour power is bought by capitalists, and its value depends on commodity on the market. However, if the worker happens to be black and living in a poor country this may to have a licence for his job as a mason.

Siweh Bansi needs work because he has a wife and five children in Williamstown, a poor black town in South Africa. But he cannot find work because he has no licence for his job.

Siweh Bansi tries to get a licence for his job, but he is turned down by the authorities.

He tells his friend to apply for a licence, but his friend is turned down as well.

Siweh Bansi is left with no choice but to work on the road for a few extra Rand to support his family.

In the end, Siweh Bansi is forced to leave his family and go to the city to find work.

Siweh Bansi is a typical example of the poverty and discrimination faced by black workers in South Africa. His story is not unique, and many others face similar challenges in their daily lives.

Marked that the method of exploitation under capitalism is the way the there is no education for blacks labour power. Labour power is bought by capitalists, and its value depends on commodity on the market. However, if the worker happens to be black and living in a poor country this may to have a licence for his job as a mason.

Siweh Bansi needs work because he has a wife and five children in Williamstown, a poor black town in South Africa. But he cannot find work because he has no licence for his job.

Siweh Bansi tries to get a licence for his job, but he is turned down by the authorities.

He tells his friend to apply for a licence, but his friend is turned down as well.

Siweh Bansi is left with no choice but to work on the road for a few extra Rand to support his family.

In the end, Siweh Bansi is forced to leave his family and go to the city to find work.

Siweh Bansi is a typical example of the poverty and discrimination faced by black workers in South Africa. His story is not unique, and many others face similar challenges in their daily lives.

Marked that the method of exploitation under capitalism is the way the there is no education for blacks labour power. Labour power is bought by capitalists, and its value depends on commodity on the market. However, if the worker happens to be black and living in a poor country this may to have a licence for his job as a mason.

Siweh Bansi needs work because he has a wife and five children in Williamstown, a poor black town in South Africa. But he cannot find work because he has no licence for his job.

Siweh Bansi tries to get a licence for his job, but he is turned down by the authorities.

He tells his friend to apply for a licence, but his friend is turned down as well.

Siweh Bansi is left with no choice but to work on the road for a few extra Rand to support his family.

In the end, Siweh Bansi is forced to leave his family and go to the city to find work.

Siweh Bansi is a typical example of the poverty and discrimination faced by black workers in South Africa. His story is not unique, and many others face similar challenges in their daily lives.

Marked that the method of exploitation under capitalism is the way the there is no education for blacks labour power. Labour power is bought by capitalists, and its value depends on commodity on the market. However, if the worker happens to be black and living in a poor country this may to have a licence for his job as a mason.

Siweh Bansi needs work because he has a wife and five children in Williamstown, a poor black town in South Africa. But he cannot find work because he has no licence for his job.

Siweh Bansi tries to get a licence for his job, but he is turned down by the authorities.

He tells his friend to apply for a licence, but his friend is turned down as well.

Siweh Bansi is left with no choice but to work on the road for a few extra Rand to support his family.

In the end, Siweh Bansi is forced to leave his family and go to the city to find work.

Siweh Bansi is a typical example of the poverty and discrimination faced by black workers in South Africa. His story is not unique, and many others face similar challenges in their daily lives.
The life and the party

1870
1875
1905
1924

the political struggle of the working class, leaving the sphere of the political struggle to the domination of the bourgeoisie. The inevitable separation between 'economic' struggle and political struggle that this enabled made capitalism the engine of world culture and later the ally of the revolution. The revolutionists wanted to transform our society and sell the working people on to work towards overthrowing capitalism in order to achieve more reforms.

In the famous book *What Is to Be Done?, Lenin outlined the theory of the organization and role of the party. Published in 1902, this book developed ideas already set out in Where Is My Cause? (1901) and Letter to a Comrade in St. Petersburg.

The period showed how a central revolutionary organization based on a scientific programme could also link together the fragmented struggles of the working class and also link the struggles of that class on a whole series of fronts and around a variety of objectives. It would do this by forging out of these disparate struggles an organisational and ideological unity which would be a crystal of the true character of the proletariat.

Lenin's thought was not to be like a priest reading sacred and unchanging texts, it must always be the richness of the experience of the movement, to give life and direction through the science of the living present.

By 1906, especially after the October uprising in December 1905, Lenin's line had become victorious and the American Social Democracy was split into two. Lenin himself went on to write:* What Is to Be Done?*

Everywhere there was a period of 'mysticism and repression,' with the revolutionaries being isolated, denounced by the Soviet and the political tendencies in the Social Democratic party. They were often hounded and subjected to harsh persecution and suppression.

And so now the Bolshevik (majority) faction triumphed over Menshevik (minority) at the Congress, the definition of the political struggle of the working class and the practice of the party's revolutionary action.
HUNGER STRIKERS BEING FORCED CROUCHED

DESPITE the torture and degradation in which the hunger strike of the Irish republican prisoners on hunger strike is making their demands, no comment is being made on the refusal of North and South of Ireland. The Standing Order Committee of the Dáil is meeting in session this afternoon to discuss the situation. The Committee is expected to make a decision on the matter later today. The situation has been described as “urgent” and “critical” by the Committee. The Committee is expected to make a decision on the matter later today. The situation has been described as “urgent” and “critical” by the Committee.

DIRTY WORK FROM HONEST DICK

WHEN IT WANTED some smooth tongued renegade from the labour movement to lay into the Clays, some years ago, it gave the honest Dick Tavener to do the job. Now we are to see another renegade, not quite so honest, arise. The Confrontation at Clays on the 7th of this month, to which the Confrontation at Clays on the 7th of this month, has given rise, is just another of the many incidents of labour’s struggle against the capitalist system. The Confrontation at Clays on the 7th of this month, has given rise, is just another of the many incidents of labour’s struggle against the capitalist system.

BUCKTON PUTS THE BRAKES ON

Any industrial action, no matter how justified, must be stopped by the man from the cooperator in order to prevent the disruption of work. This is a fundamental principle of industrial action, and it is the same principle that is applicable to all forms of industrial action. The man from the cooperator must understand the importance of industrial action, and he must be prepared to take the necessary steps to ensure that the action is carried out in an orderly and peaceful manner.

No News Police say: Only 4 allowed on Picket

THE STRIKERS at Art Carlington & Co. have faced intense police harassment over the past few days, as they have picked in support of workers who are fighting for their union recognition. The strikers have been arrested and charged with possessing offensive weapons, and they have been charged with being an illegal immigrant; and the police have constantly harassed them by pursuing them through the streets, setting dogs on them, and breaking up picket lines. The police have used a great boost to the confidence of the strikers, and the police have been successful in breaking up picket lines.

The health of the strikers has been affected by the police harassment. The police have been accused of using excessive force, and of being unnecessarily aggressive in their handling of the strikers. The police have been accused of using excessive force, and of being unnecessarily aggressive in their handling of the strikers.

The health of the strikers has been affected by the police harassment. The police have been accused of using excessive force, and of being unnecessarily aggressive in their handling of the strikers. The police have been accused of using excessive force, and of being unnecessarily aggressive in their handling of the strikers.