Wilson hits out as Con-trick loses its grip

SIFTING THE OPTIONS FOR A WAGE CUT

THE GOVERNMENT, the CBI and the trade union leaders are at odds and seven is how to curb wage rises. All are agreed on one point: the 'social contract' is no longer working and that whatever replaces it must involve the working class in the brunt of the bosses' present crisis.

The TUC has claimed it will not be party to any wage vetting. All that it will agree to is emphasising the need to stick to the 'social contract' guidelines and demanding any union which tries to go beyond them. Len Murray has declared that he will have no more Socialist councils but from the capitalists, and probably from the government too, is the likelihood of anything less than an effective vetting of ideas and pay by the government, by union leaders, and by employers' associations, is the more effectively restraining wages and thus helping profits along, follow four main sources.

1. The挂钩 deal is a revamped social contract, probably meat not back in the early 90s, when the average and eastern leaders were writing Fabian pamphlets on socialist incomes policy.

2. The proposed two-tier plan, whereby workers and workers in fixed incomes would receive a set wage limit, according to their current wage levels, to be reviewed every three years, is a move in the same direction. This will likely be resisted by all but the weakest, who have not got a pay rise out of their own.

3. The TUC's trepidation stems in part from a recognition that the workers who voted for a new wage structure on the ballot papers are demanding more than 30 per cent increase in their wages.

4. The 'social contract' is based on the idea of a wage ceiling, which would be calculated as a proportion of the cost of living. This would undoubtedly show a much higher figure.

5. The TUC's demands for a new wage structure on the ballot papers are demanding more than 30 per cent increase in their wages. But the problem is that these new wage demands are not being met by the government.

It's "left cop" season in the steel industry again.

According to press reports, 20,000 jobs have been saved in the steel industry and the plants closed by the Steel Corporation's chief Mr. Fluxman has been scrapped. Following on what was widely reported as a big fight between Fluxman and Boyarin, who according to sources were attributed to Beinn's "crusades" for jobs, and he was given by steel workers from steelworks on Monday.

But have any jobs been saved? Certainly the timetable of closures has been extended, but the announcement is not quite that simple. That is, the workers may have been "saved" from closure, but their jobs may be at risk of being "lost" due to changes in the economy. The announcement was made in order to stop the closures.

According to Steelworkers' Union sources, the most recent plant to announce a closure is the steelworks in England, where 2,000 jobs were lost in the past six months. The union has been campaigning to save these jobs, and the announcement is seen as a victory.

Steelworkers and their wives followed the Scotts flag in their protest at coke in the steel industry. The new plan was to be announced in the next week, but the unions have agreed to continue the protest until a new plan is announced.

The government must be laughed at! After all, it will save a huge amount of the wage bill: most workers will be made redundant without a fight, for the "reduction" has no basis in fact, but is used to try to force the workers to accept a new plan.

The government must be "out of work"! After all, it will save a huge amount of the wage bill: most workers will be made redundant without a fight, for the "reduction" has no basis in fact, but is used to try to force the workers to accept a new plan.

Free speech

If it can happen to a respectable headline-stopper after an election, it can happen to anyone. I don't take much imagination to see that what we have now is a real problem; at least in the party that is in power.

Lord Denning, who spoke during the appeal to the Court of Appeal, claimed that the position of the temporary injunctions against "defamation is tantamount to a restriction of free speech.

The defence argues that the restrictions on speech are unnecessary and that the injunctions are being used to silence any criticism.

Free speech, as it is understood, is the right to speak and write without fear of interference by the government or other powerful interests.

Court denies right of protest

The right of free speech suffered a blow from the state last week when they upheld a Judge's denial of the right to protest.

While workers are still allowed to picket in an industrial dispute, this judgment means that no legal right exists for people to mount a picket on a non-industrial issue.

This case, which arose out of a campaign against Peabody Estate Agents in Islington, is another in a series of cases where rulings have denied the legal rights of people to picket and protest.

The case was brought by the National Union of Workers, who ruled that they had the right to picket outside another building, Jervois House.

The case was decided by the Appeal Court, which ruled that the picketing was illegal and that the workers were not entitled to a picket on a non-industrial issue.

The case is significant because it is the first time that the right to protest has been denied on a non-industrial issue.

Back to square one    WITH A VENGEANCE!

JACKIE CLEARY ON THE SITUATION IN THE NORTH OF IRELAND

The Irish Army has done very little to give any comfort to the Catholics; the electoral system of course the allocation of social services.

Is it what is being talked of regarding the peace talks? Must we be prepared to put down bloodshed, with the British police as in the Butlertown riot? After the last five months the Provisionals have maintained a cease-fire until the Provisional’s new campaign has begun. Forty Catholic Churches have been burned since the beginning of the year. The British Army has done very little to give any comfort to the Catholics - indeed, all loyalist harassment have been released, while 300 Rep. Army and 200 Provisional have been arrested.

Perhaps the most outstanding feature of the Provisional campaign was its clear demonstration that in a multinational society, the allocation of social services, housing, education, health, etc., should be done in a fair manner. The Provisional’s campaign showed that the Catholics were the most deprived group in society.

MURDEROUS

The Provisional’s formation of the basis of the revolt of the Catholic community, initially demanding reforms (one main provision was that there be no more bloodshed), was successful in locking down the British Army. New institutions were not created by sectarianism, the British and trade union movement was sectoral to the core.

Lawless, Bully Boys and the British Army

The Provisional’s campaign showed that the Catholics were the most deprived group in society.

But for all the tinkering, the Provisionals have lost none of their real power. What they have lost in governmental terms, is that they gained in the mobilisation of their power and organisation.

A lesson for the T.M. Labour Movement Conference

No short cuts to success for TOM

FEW SITUATIONS offer so little ground for any optimism as the situation in Ireland today. For the Provisionals to continue fighting, there must be a significant change in the situation in Ireland. The Provisionals have lost none of their real power. What they have lost in governmental terms, is that they gained in the mobilisation of their power and organisation.

The Provisional’s campaign showed that the Catholics were the most deprived group in society.

Aiding

However, for all their weaknesses, TOM is the best there is in terms of strategies to deal with the violence. A great deal of useful work has been done, in organising activities in the Labour Movement, the Teachers’ Union, the Community Groups, and the Catholic Workers. TOM’s activism has to be seen as ‘discrimination’ from the Protestant point of view.

Silence

At each turn, the barbs and sharp corners of the Irish struggle have seen the end of the Provisional’s campaign in the North of Ireland.

Evade

But that mass feeling is anything but a victory for the Provisional’s campaign in the North of Ireland.

selves. Paramilitary gangs armed with automatic weapons under the cover of law grew up with similar modus operandi. More and more people voted for violence, and the Provisional’s campaign in the North of Ireland was just one more step in this direction.

Legal cover

But every action taken by the Provisionals was decisive. The Provisional’s campaign in the North of Ireland was just one more step in this direction.

Dithering

Even so, it is possible that the Provisional’s campaign in the North of Ireland was just one more step in this direction.

Defence, and retaliation by the Provisionals, would mean an expansion of full-scale operations.

Which is why restoration would mean a massive expansion of full-scale operations.

The very description of what the Provisionals are doing to their own people, the Orange politicians and their friends, is a policy of genocide. The Provisional’s campaign in the North of Ireland was just one more step in this direction.

Boiling

But the Provisional’s campaign in the North of Ireland was just one more step in this direction.

THE conference of the Working Women's Charter Campaign on Immigration at the Eri in London was a better organized occasion than the previous one six months ago as it was not held in the East End, but the two thirds were from union branches in the south of England, and the rest were from Charter clubs in London and the West Country. The women's co-ordinating committee will be decided, but a motion for a more centralised delegate body to make policy was defeated, and the initiative remains with the local branches.

The conference approved the Call to Support the Charter of TUC, the case of the West Indian worker, and the reports of the immigration committee of the TUC. The Charter asked for an end to the illegal immigration, and the conference expressed the view that the work of the Charter had been remarkable in the way that it had spread to other groups and stimulated the work of the TUC. The Charter also expressed the view that the Charter of TUC was inadequate to the task that was before it.

The conference also agreed to organies a full scale and multi-union conference in London as a result of the success of the Charter in London.

BRANCHES

Some Charter groups are sub-committees of Trades Councils, and others have been formed independently of the Trades Councils, while others are branches of local unions. All branches are referred to as Trades Councils as branches of the Trades Council. The conference expressed its concern over the treatment of Charter women and the problems they face. The conference expressed its support for Charter women and the work they are doing.

TRADE UNION SUPPORT NEEDED IN CAMPAIGN AGAINST 'WHITE BILL'

The National Abortion Campaign's concerted effort to stop the passing of the White Bill going through parliament in Manchester is reported on. All political parties have been represented there, although many are not.

Seventy women are reported to have been seen in that gathering. The meeting was called by the Abortion Campaign to demonstrate against the passing of the White Bill, which would abolish abortion in the UK. The meeting was attended by all political parties, and all major trade unions were represented.

Many of the women present were Charter members, and others were trade unionists.

The meeting ended with a call to action, and a resolution was passed to support the National Abortion Campaign's efforts to halt the passage of the White Bill.

"INNOCENT MEN GO TO JAIL" – M.P.

One of the most disgusting things about British justice is supposed to be the scrupulous adherence to legal procedures. So scrupulous that about 74% of the cases taken up by the NCC last year involved dubious identification evidence. Police have used a combination of ambiguous or non-existent evidence, to make a quick snatch and close a case.

Alburt Warrington and Thomas Madgin were sentenced to 8 years each for alleged armed robbery of a Sainsbury's bingo hall in February 1972. The bingo hall manager had described one of the robbers as having dark hair, a large brown nose, and wearing glasses. Alburt Warrington, who is said to have been a white man, had fair hair, a small unbroken nose and no glasses.

A local trade union assistant gave a description of a man who fitted the profile of Alburt Warrington. The Assistant was told to mention that Madgin has three fingers missing and a

McAlpine's

Shrewsbury to

McAlpine's Law Courts

TEN SCAFFOLDERS are to appear before the Crown Court in Shrewsbury on Tuesday in the near future. They were arrested for picketing a McAlpine building site in the town, where Ascot House was being built. On 29th November, 1974, they were charged with being present on a public highway and obstructing traffic. They have pleaded not guilty to the charge.

The scaffolders are believed to be representative of the most active members of the McAlpine construction group. They have been active in bringing about McAlpine's policies of involving the pickers in the dispute.

The trade union movement was, however, forced to bear the brunt of the picking up, and it is believed that the scaffolders are now supporting the pickers.

We ask all those brothers who are able to send a delegation to the picketing point to inform us. Because the courts will not give advance notice of the date of the trial, arrangements for the demonstration must be made at the earliest possible notice.

The Defence Committee, who are representing the pickets at the McAlpine Law Courts, can be contacted at 339 Finchley Road, London N.W.6.
Union Ballots

A SHAMELESS HYPOCRISY FROM THE RIGHT

The results of the elections in the United Kingdom, AUW, are of comfort neither to the Left nor to the Right.

Most important of all, however, was the election of the Central Executive to replace right-wing John Dewar, who gave up the job. The new head, John Shaw, is a more satisfactory choice, and the National Officer for the steelworkers, Richard Paul, is a man of integrity.

Boyd's victory over Broad Left candidates in the Glasgow district was at the expense of the emergent union's list in the trade union conference. The General Secretary of the Union of Steelworkers, John Boyd, is a man of integrity and the National Officer for the steelworkers, Richard Paul, is a man of integrity.

The defeat has to be faced and learned from, not lobbed off with idle bravado.

In the national elections, the Central Executive was returned to power by a large majority. The new leader, John Shaw, is a man of integrity and the National Officer for the steelworkers, Richard Paul, is a man of integrity.

THE DEFENDERS OF THE CHRYSLER BED

CHRYSLER workers once again gave overwhelming support to their steward in the continuation of their strike until the company agrees to pay for three weeks of strike pay in advance, as was agreed at the previous contract talks.

Winston's attack seems to have stirred up a hornet's nest, too, because his speech to the Confederation of British Industry earlier this week, Bob Morris, Chrysler, and Morris, Chrysler, Stoke, have now rescued the blacklisting of hundreds of workers, who have disappeared from the resignation of thousands of jobs in the process. The Big Print magazine's columnists and Thompsons are about to bring in new print media. The Big Print magazine, used in America, making thousands of circulation.

Many workers have insisted that they are not blacklisted, for they will not be blacklisted by the system. Workers who have been blacklisted and are still leading their own union are now no longer blacklisted. The conference, therefore, should not be interpreted as a victory for the Big Print magazine. The Big Print magazine must not be blacklisted.

One of the most important items in the resolution passed by the conference was the formation of the new union, the Blacklist Union. The new union is intended to be a union of all workers who have been blacklisted. The conference passed a resolution that the Blacklist Union be constituted, and that it should be established to resist speed-up redundancies and redundancies.

Chemical workers occupy after 30 years with no strike

MAGNETIC ELECTRON, in Manchester, has announced that the chemical workers' strike, which started on May 5th, and the workers are continuing their struggle against the closure of their plant in Peel, are continuing. The workers' strike will be continued and the closure of Peel will be continued.

The chemical workers are demanding the right to speak to their union leaders on this matter.

Meanwhile, the British Chemical Co., who have also issued a statement, said they would be happy to negotiate locally.

The bosses (MAGNETIC ELECTRON) have added that the British Chemical Co., who have also issued a statement, said they would be happy to negotiate locally.

Widespread strike has been gained from the Farmers, Engineers, Ecologists, and the chemical company, where the workers are still fighting for their jobs. The workers will continue to come out in support of MAGNETIC ELECTRON, which is the largest firm in the UK.

Pickets all over the town

STRIKERS at the Coventry factory of Magnesium Elektron, which has stepped up production of a new material, have been successively attacked by the management and the management, who have attempted to take control of the plant, and picketing techniques of the management are on course.

Picketing at the Coventry factory of Magnesium Elektron, which has stepped up production of a new material, have been successively attacked by the management and the management, who have attempted to take control of the plant, and picketing techniques of the management are on course.

The result of the strike at Straightford Express found that when they stopped their work in order to have more redundancies and natural wastage, the members of the union were thrown into severe unemployment instead of the three hardness levels.

The conference resolution called for "harder" levels, to be established, to resist speed-up redundancies and redundancies.
